VARIOUS MATTERS.

Almanac day for March.

The snow shovel may do duty yet.

The day's length has increased two hours.

Milliners for the new season are arriving in town.

March appears to have arrived ahead of schedule time.

Every farmer with low land now has his own reservoir.

A lively caterpillar was noticed on Church street Thursday.

Yesterday was tedious for those obliged to drive any distance.

Most of the wheat clubs have suspended meetings during Lent.

Hens are beginning to lay and the price of eggs is slightly lower.

Poultry raisers have begun to stock up the incubators for the steam hatch.

The pastor's conference of the disocese of Hartford will be held next Tuesday.

POLICEMAN MALONEY HAD

HARD TIME WITH TOUGHS.

Refused to Move When Directed, but

All Were Landed in Cooler—Several

Came to His Assistance and Two of the Prisoners Were Marked.

There was one of the liveliest free-for-all fights on Central wharf shortly after 10 o'clock Thursday afternoon when that section has experienced in some time. Policeman Maloney, who had a tussle with a quartette there on Monday, saw another quartette hold up a young man just east of Peck & McWilliams' office. He at once ordered them to move on and they resisted to hinder. He placed one of them,

William Ahearn, under arrest and thereafter there was a rough and tumultuous fight. He placed one of them,

$90,000 BOUNTY FOR BIG MEADOW

Proposed by Board of Water Commissioners who Invite

Common Council Members to Look Over Plans—Engineer Chandler Explains.

After dam would not be built. For the entire improvement the sum of $90,000 is wanted. It is claimed that the dam will be sufficient to retain all the water afforded by the watershed, and that it will hold it there until winter and then it will be released for the benefit of the Fairview or until wanted.

No action of any kind was taken

Thursday, but it is believed an opportunity for the members to look over the plans at their leisure and be better prepared to consider the proposition when the water commissioners present it Monday evening, as they expect to do.

Reservoir Steadily Gaining.
